AGRICULTURE TO AID STIMULATING BUSINESS

TO BE CALLED UPON BY

PRES. HOOVER

ECONOMIC INVALID TO DO ITS BIT, LIMITED AS IT MAY BE

TESTIFIES TO THE SWEEPING
NATURE OF MOBILIZATION
AT WASHINGTON

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 25.—Agriculture was called upon by President Hoover today to offer its aid in stimulating business this winter.

That the president should summon even this economic invalid to do its bit, limited as that might be, testified to the sweeping nature of the mobilization which Washington has undertaken to dispel any "foolish pessimism" resulting from the stock market depression.

At the last minute the plans for the agriculture conference were changed slightly and the farm leaders met at 10 A. M. with Secretary of Agriculture Hyde at his office. President Hoover asked the farm leaders to come to the White House after lunch rather than in the forenoon as planned.

Every major economic group in the country has been summoned by Mr. Hoover—general industry, construction, utilities, railroads, labor and now, agriculture.

Industry has promised to keep wages up. Labor has promised not to fight for more money. Railroads expect to spend a billion dollars next year. Utilities may spend two billion dollars. Continued expansion of the electric power industry was forecast in the annual report of the federal power commission today.

In addition Mr. Hoover has called on all state governors to muster state, county and municipal development projects. He has started action toward a $160,000,000 tax cut. The federal buildings program is to be expanded.

The shipping industry is to be given 12 to 20 million dollars in ocean mail contracts.

The federal reserve system is exerting steady pressure to force down interest rates so as to enable business to hire money more cheaply.

Agriculture, though struggling with its own problems, is in a situation to contribute no small mite to the nation's general buying schedules. Agriculture buys nearly a half billion dollars worth of farm implements a year. Some twelve million people on farms must have clothes, household goods, automobiles and the other thousands of articles necessary to every home.

In addition there is the possibility of some elevator and agriculture warehouse construction during the next few months. Department of agriculture economists have surveyed the elevator situation. They concluded no extensive enlargement of terminal elevator space is needed despite the shortage which developed in the last harvest due to unique conditions and probably cost the farmers an average loss of ten cents a bushel. Nevertheless the federal farm board is not so sure that some elevator development might not be wise. Certainly country elevators and warehouses can be profitably built in some localities, it is felt.

President Hoover called in heads of leading farm organizations and members of the farm board today to canvass this whole situation. His especial hope is that farm heads will go back to the country and urge that the farmers continue business as usual. He feels that the gigantic marketing of the farm board which have served to support wheat and cotton prices and which have enabled farmers, through loans, to hold their crops instead of dumping them on the market at sacrifice prices to get cash, warrant every farm house looking to the future with confidence and continuing its normal purchases.

This is the last of the president's scheduled conferences although he will meet with utilities heads at some undetermined date.

The reaction to Mr. Hoover's taking the industrial lead of the nation about ten days ago has been gratifying to administration circles here. Hundreds of telegrams from every section and every economic group have joined with war-time enthusiasm in the president's "get to work" program.

Business itself will formally take over the task of carrying on when nearly 200 industrial leaders of the nation meet at the United States Chamber of Commerce here December 5 at the suggestion of President Hoover.

Many governors wired Washington over the week-end and today expressing co-operation with President Hoover's request for aiding in his business advancement program.

The president Saturday urged state executives to push pending public works and advise him of the amount of state and local projects to be counted on in this connection. The appeal was part of the president's effort to spur industry which was projected in business and industrial conferences last week.

The body was found in a deserted hut near here Sunday by a hunting party of school boys. Johnson had left his home Friday and a search was conducted when he failed to return.

He is survived by two daughters and one son.

Grants Pass, Ore., Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—Forest fires along the southern Oregon coast roared under the lash of a high west wind today, licking at a half dozen small towns scattered through the timber land and driving an army of fire fighters before them.

Two big fires were burning near the Jack Creek area on Palmer Butte, both believed of incendiary origin. Towns between the Butte and Gold Hill were menaced.

Another fierce fire was blazing in the Siskiyou reserve near Gold Beach and still another was threatening redwood timber in northern California, just over the Oregon line.

Communication between Grants Pass and Brookings had been severed, and officials were unable to gauge destruction in the burning sector.

Crescent City, Calif., was reported menaced by the blaze along the boundary between the two states. A shift of wind sent the flames racing southward last night.

from 16 governors this morning and expected many more before night. The White House did not at once make the replies public.

Gov. Theodore Christianson of Minnesota advised the United Press that he differed with the president's public expenditure policy, wiring as follows:

"St. Paul, Minn.—I have never been impressed with the foster-catchings theory of stabilizing prosperity by increasing public expenditures which is the basis of the president's recommendation. If the industrial east would withdraw its opposition to legislation giving agriculture parity, the farmers' buying power would be strengthened to such an extent that it would not be necessary to push public construction programs beyond reasonably anticipated needs to stimulate the labor market. However, in Minnesota we shall co-operate to the extent of spending the money heretofore made available by the legislature for public work. That is all we can do because we do not have another legislative session until 1931.

Gov. Frank Allen of Massachusetts wired the following:

"Boston, Mass.—I am in hearty accord with President Hoover's business stabilization program. Public works for this year in Massachusetts are the most extensive in history. Orders have been issued to speed up this work. Just authorized construction of new office buildings to be undertaken immediately. Budget for 1930 will provide for most ambitious program for construction and reconstruction of highways and public works. Expect full co-operation from our cities and towns.

"Frank G. Allen, governor of Massachusetts.

Madison, Wis., Gov. Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin:

"I have already directed a survey of state construction possible in 1930. The survey will be enlarged to include counties and municipalities. Wisconsin will co-operate to the fullest extent practicable to further employment and strengthen the economic situation.

Gov. John Hammill of Iowa assured President Hoover of Iowa's intention to co-operate in the following telegram:

"Iowa will be pleased to co-operate with you in your industrial program in every way possible.

"Iowa will build approximately one thousand miles of pavement in 1930 costing approximately $25,000,000. The state board of education will spend approximately $500,000 for new improvements. The state board of control of state board of education will spend approximately $750,000. Our road program is one of the greatest of any state in the union and when completed will give Iowa the most comprehensive and complete system of highways of any state."

CANNON THROUGHOUT NATION BOOM TRIBUTE TO "FATHER OF VICTORY"

By RALPH HEINZEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Saint Vincent Sur Jard, France, Nov. 25.—Amid the tangled briars of a woodland grave in his beloved Vendee, the body of Georges Clemenceau was laid to rest today with all the simplicity asked in his dying request.

While cannons throughout the nation boomed their tribute to the "Father of Victory," the simple unstained oak box which held the shell of the fierce old warrior was lowered into the soft mud of the open grave which years ago the Tiger had prepared for himself beside the grave of his father.

His faithful servants, Albert and Francois, loved almost as his own children, lowered the oak box into the grave shortly before noon. In every respect, save one, the dying wishes of the Tiger were observed. There was no religious ceremony at the grave. The Tiger had not wished it. He had refused it as he lay dying only to have benediction pronounced after he had passed into unconsciousness.

Only Clemenceau's last wish that he be buried "standing up" was not observed. His family of a son and two daughters had overruled that one last request and the casket was laid horizontally in the grave.

"Dig the ground out of the hole and soften up the bottom so that when I lie there it will be soft," the Tiger had ordered. Francois did that less than 24 hours ago.

With all its simplicity the ceremony was most impressive because it represented the simple ending of one of the greatest careers of contemporary French history.

Rings of gendarmes kept back the thousands of curious, journalists and photographers, while only a few of the late statesman's closest friends stepped through the barbed wire fence to the side of the grave.

The ceremony lasted only three minutes. On top of the oak box a few flowers were scattered. They included the withered pale blue blossoms which were presented to Clemenceau by a French corporal in 1917 and which he had preserved in his library.

There had been no attempt to tidy the woods for the ceremony; it had been the Tiger's theory that man's destiny was to return to nature in its simplest form. And thus he was returned.

It was learned that the Tiger had been kept alive for nearly six hours with oxygen after his heart had suddenly weakened Saturday night. His last words were "Stop that," spoken to Dr. Charles Lauby when the latter administered an injection of morphine Saturday night. The protest was characteristic of his fierce nature, but the words were lost in a gesture of peace as he kissed the hands of his faithful valet, Albert, and his chauffeur, Francois, a few hours before his death.

Expressions of sympathy were innumerable and they came from leaders of the government of France, the world and the from the press in general.

Former Premier Paul Painleve praised the Tiger's heroism:

"I knew him during many troubled hours," Painleve said. "We often differed in ideas but I admired him. In May, 1918, when the enemy broke the line, Clemenceau saw the value of naming Foch supreme commander, whipping up the scattered allied forces."

Minister of the Navy Georges Leygues declared Clemenceau was the "soul of France's resistance" during the world war.

Monsieur Verdier, new archbishop of Paris, said: "I mourn with all France the death of Georges Clemenceau, who brought France victory."

Former President Raymond Poincare was deeply moved, the Echo de Paris said.

"Clemenceau once saved France," Poincare was quoted as saying. "That's what I told him before the council of ministers in January, 1920, when he resigned as premier at the time Paul Deschanel was president of the republic."

The press mourned the Tiger as the "Father of Victory."

There were no official representatives of the government at the grave, only the Tiger's son, Michel, his two daughters, Madames Jacquemaire and Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—The wedding guests had gone home and John Antezak, the bridegroom, was trying to figure out one of those in-door bed puzzles.

"I think you have to pull that lever first," suggested the bride. He did and the bed slipped down, catching in an electric light cord. The bridegroom yelled as the electricity knocked him half way across the room.

They had to strap him to a bed in the hospital. By noon doctors listened to his plea that he wasn't hurt much and let him go back to his bride.

Young, his grandson, Dr. Andre Jacquemaire, the two servants, Albert and Francois, and a few close personal friends.

The two faithful retainers were the last to leave the grave. After the family and all others had departed through the rustling leaves, Albert and Francois stood with bare heads in the chill drizzle, lingering for one last tribute at the small deep chamber where the Tiger will sleep his "dreamless sleep," lulled by the gusts from the sea and cushioned by the soft earth of Vendee.

SENATOR WARREN
DIES AT AGE OF 85

GRAND OLD MAN OF SENATE, AN OUTSTANDING MAN IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—For the third time this month, death has claimed an outstanding man in Washington. Senator Francis Emory Warren, republican, Wyoming—the grand old man of the senate—died at his home here yesterday at the age of 85 years.

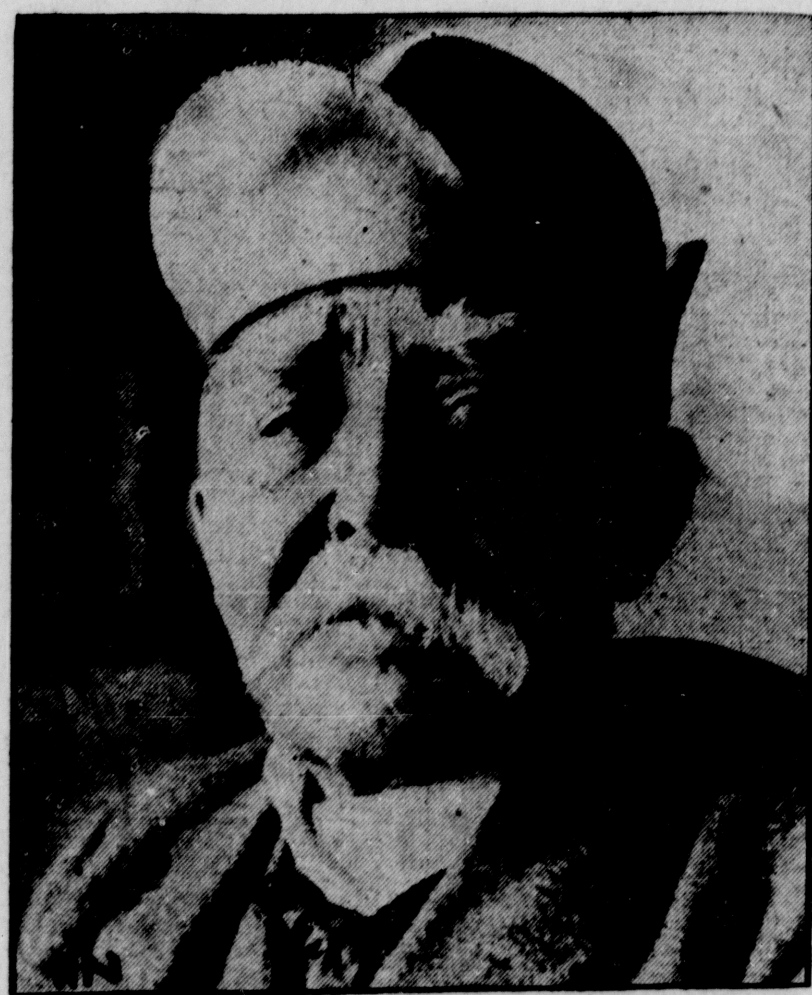

He was taken ill with a cold three weeks ago and bronchial pneumonia developed. He died with General John J. Pershing, widow of the senator's daughter, at his bedside.

A state funeral will be held in the senate chamber Tuesday, as for Sen. Burton of Ohio, the first of the three to die in the last few weeks. Secretary of War Good died less than a week ago.

The oldest senator in years and service, Warren was the last Union soldier in congress. Owner of vast sheep ranches in the west, he was often called by his friends, "the greatest shepherd since Abraham." A drummer boy in the Civil War and holder of a congressional medal of honor, Warren lived to serve 37 years in the senate.

After the funeral here the body will be taken to Cheyenne for burial, leaving Washington Tuesday afternoon. Members of the family, Pershing and his son, Warren, and a congressional delegation will accompany the body.

ASSERTS TARIFF BILL PLACING AGRICULTURE ON A PARITY

St. Paul, Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—The northwest is prepared for the most prosperous year since war times, business and industrial leaders declared here today after Governor Theodore Christianson answered a message from President Hoover asking for an increased public building program in Minnesota.

President Hoover's telegram was received by the governor Saturday night. It asked that state, county and municipal officials co-operate in speeding up road, street, public building and other construction.

In his reply to the president, Governor Christianson suggested that "more can be accomplished toward the stabilization of prosperity by stimulating the farmer's buying power than in any other way." He expressed the belief that this best can be brought about by passing of a tariff bill that will place agriculture on a parity with industry.

The governor declared Minnesota will co-operate with the president to the fullest extent by spending all funds made available for public works by the last legislature.

"You will have the middle west solidly behind you," the message to the president continued, "in a demand upon congress in your forthcoming message for immediate consideration and prompt passage of a tariff bill that will place agriculture on a parity with industry."

Millions of dollars may be spent in Minnesota public works in the next year to carry out the president's desire, a survey of the state department here revealed today. Counties and municipalities in some instances are expected to double their average annual expenditures.

Public utility and railroad expansion and construction also will be rushed, it was indicated. Among the large programs planned is one of $90,000,000 by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads.

No estimate of the total sum to be spent in Minnesota or the northwest on both public and private construction and expansion was available here.

J. E. Gorman, president of the Rock Island, who announced the budget, said it was about $10,000,000 greater than that for this year.

Beverly Hills, Calif., Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—Raymond Hitchcock, veteran star of musical comedy, died of heart failure as he sat in an automobile at his home last midnight.

Mrs. Hitchcock said she and her husband had just driven home from a drug store in the neighborhood where Hitchcock parked his car, drew a deep breath and fell over on her shoulder, dead.

Hitchcock, who was 64 years old, had motored with his wife through the canyons surrounding Beverly Hills and Hollywood Sunday and had stopped at a drug store and picked up a servant who had taken the day off. As the three drove up to the Hitchcock home and stopped, the comedian collapsed.

Mrs. Hitchcock tried to notify some friends and failing, she called the police. Dr. Day Johnson, police surgeon, said Hitchcock died of heart failure and later Dr. Meals signed a death certificate. No inquest will be held, it was announced.

"The Yankee Consul" probably was Hitchcock's best remembered vehicle. He became famous largely through his work in the musical comedy "Hitchy Koo." Mrs. Hitchcock played opposite her husband in many plays.

Hitchcock was born in Auburn, N. Y. His first experience as an "actor," he once told friends, was when he got a job selling shoes in his home town. His first actual stage experience was as a substitute player in the W. T. Carleton opera traveling show. His stardom, however, began with "The Yankee Consul," in which he appeared as Abijah Boozie. That success placed him firmly on Broadway and his fame increased with "The Yankee Tourist," "The Red Widow," "The Merry Go Round," "The Beauty Shop," "Betty," and "The Man Who Owns Broadway."

His wife was a Chicago girl, a musical comedy star, the daughter of the Rev. M. M. Mangararian, a religious teacher.

NOVEMBER 17

Harbin, Manchuria, Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—Thousands of Soviet cavalry, protected by artillery, advanced today on the Manchurian city of Hailar, which was evacuated yesterday by 10,000 Chinese troops.

In retreating from Hailar, near the western limit of the Chinese Eastern railway where the Soviets began a general offensive a week ago, Chinese officials claimed that the city had not yet fallen to the invaders. Citizens of Hailar also were leaving their homes. It was understood that Manchurian officials were anxious to begin peace parleys with the Russians and to that end were prepared to approach the Soviet consul at Dairen through the German consul at Mukden.

The extended offensive of the Russians began November 17. Moscow stated that because of acts of the Chinese, the government was "obliged" to begin a counter-offensive.

Persistent reports reached here that the Soviet troops were prepared to regain by force the entire Chinese Eastern railway. Harbin, central point of the railway, was under strict martial law yesterday.

Reinforcements were departing from here in the direction of Hailar, where 40,000 Chinese troops were expected to erect a new line of defense.

Tokio, Nov. 25.—The Nippon Dempo News Agency correspondent at Harbin reported today that Soviet troops had occupied districts of Manchuria and established headquarters at Dairen.

The correspondent said it was not anticipated that Hailar, on the Chinese Eastern railroad not far from the western border, would be occupied tomorrow.

The Russian forces also started an advance on the Eastern frontier, capturing the fortress of Mishan-Hsien, the dispatch said.

Tokio, Nov. 25.—The Harbin correspondent of the newspaper Asahi said today that Soviet troops had occupied the Manchurian town of Hailar.

Kongkang, Nov. 25.—Arrangements were made today to evacuate foreign residents from Wu-Chow because Canton troops have threatened to make an aerial raid on rebel forces there.

The Kwangsi troops, which recently offered opposition to the national government, were said to be sympathetic toward the rebel Ironsides forces which are preparing for a large scale campaign against the central government.

The rebel troops have started an invasion of Kwangtung province, already having reached Takling, just across the border.

A determined Soviet occupation of Manchurian territory appeared to have started on two frontiers today.

After a prolonged lull in active border fighting, an advance of Russian forces across the eastern and western frontiers was reported in dispatches from Harbin. The reports from Chinese sources indicated the advance was without resistance.

Reports of the advance were not confirmed from Moscow but the Chinese advices from Manchuria indicated the following alignment of fighting forces in the land of Chinghis Khan. Russian troops advanced in the vicinity of the Chinese Eastern railway—which was the direct cause of the present crisis—to Dairen, where advance headquarters were established not far from the border town of Manchuli. Chinese troops evacuated Hailar and withdrew into the western mountain ranges where they were expected to establish defense lines.

It was anticipated that the Russians would occupy Hailar—which is in the interior on the Chinese Eastern railway—tomorrow, thus establishing a wide area control along the western frontier, extending probably to the mountains which offer a natural defense.

Simultaneously, Chinese sources reported, Soviet troops captured the fortress at Mishan-Hsien on the eastern frontier, indicating a drive on Mulin. The railroad town of Mulin is on the road to Harbin.

The first reports of the double advance indicated that the Soviet forces were planning to advance along the railroad—which splits Manchuria—and regain control of it.

St. Paul, Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—Lloyd W. Chandler held a match near the carburetor of his automobile to thaw it out and make starting easier. Firemen arrived in time to check the flames and prevent total destruction.

Colombo, Ceylon, Nov. 25. — (AP) — Mary Pickford's idea of a perfect motion picture would be a combination of the silent screen and the talking pictures, the famous actress said today before continuing her voyage to China.

MUSICAL CLUB IN VARIED PROGRAM

Musical Numbers, Reports of State Federation, Appearance of Past Presidents

CHORAL CLUB SINGS

Sentiment of All Past Executives Expressed Pleasure in Club Work (Contributed)

On Saturday afternoon the Ladies Musical club had a thoroughly interesting session at the Elks auditorium. Those who did not appear missed an unusually varied and surprising afternoon.

Mrs. E. J. Quinn, president of the club, presided and introduced the various people with ease and graciousness. The afternoon was divided into three parts: first, came the musical program; then the reports of the state federation meeting; and third, the presentation and appearance of the past presidents.

The Choral club, directed by Miss Effie Drexler and accompanied by Mrs. Louis Knudsen sang two songs with precision and feeling and that ease that has come to be associated with their singing and that accounts for their success in the state. They sang "Children of the Moon" and Joyce Kilmer's "Trees."

After this came Dr. G. I. Badeaux, whose appearance always evokes applause, and on this occasion he sang three songs, "Morning," "Midsund in the Wood," and "Song of Thanksgiving." He sang them with fine expression and feeling, and in the song of "Morning" had especially opportunity for showing the beauty of his voice. In this song Mrs. Knudsen had some unusually interesting accompaniments.

Beth Pulkrabek next gave two very pretty and graceful solo dances, "Cigarette" and a dainty encore dance.

One of the interesting things about living in a town a number of years is that one has the satisfaction of seeing young people develop along the years and grow in mastery of their art. Miss Geraldine Kiebler's rendition of two numbers on the violin was a thoroughly delightful part of the program.

The second part of the program was in the nature of two reports from the state convention given by Mrs. C. M. Patek and Mrs. L. F. Hawkinson. Mrs. Patek reported on the speeches concerning the work that could be done by the club for furthering education, and suggested the giving of scholarships and the beautifying of school grounds. She spoke of the work toward world peace, and quoted the speaker as stating that the road was a long hard one to travel. She then suggested community singing for the club.

Mrs. Hawkinson gave a very comprehensive report of her attendance at the convention in so interesting a fashion and with such force that one almost felt that one had been there. Following are some of the pertinent facts in her report:

Older people should never feel that they should stop learning or that they were too old to learn, for experiments had proved that the matter of years in any way affected the learning process. She urged that parents read worth while books that would broaden their mental horizon, and that they should never feel any inferiority as regards their ability to keep abreast of or ahead of their children.

At the International Good Will Luncheon and in speeches afterward the salient facts brought out were that the world must choose between war and civilization, for both cannot exist; that arbitration is gaining ground slowly; that inventions are a hundred years ahead of the thoughts of the average man, and that our thoughts must advance to catch up with machinery.

Other addresses stressed the work that can be done for the welfare of children; the Border Dam projects, and an exceedingly interesting discussion of the character and career of Mussolini. The report was exceedingly well done.

The surprise of the afternoon came in the person of Mrs. Irma Camp Hartley, who responded to the call for a speech from one of the first presidents by a witty suggestion that the presidents be put in wax and preserved for future generations, and that whether she appeared at any given re-union in person or in wax, she'd be happy to be there.

Unfortunately, some of the past presidents could not be there, but those who were present responded with felicitous remarks about the outstanding events in their administrations.

Mrs. Patek spoke briefly of the convention.

Mrs. Henry I. Cohen spoke of the growth of the club from 60 to 180 members, of the acquiring of a piano, and of the stupendous task of holding the state convention. At this time started the policy of having five or six hostesses furnish the programs.

Mrs. D. M. Clark spoke cheerfully of the struggles through which the club went through in having programs.

Mrs. J. A. Thabes stated that the most important work of her two years was the work among the younger members, of the starting of the Junior Musical club for the study of operas. This was very carefully carried on among 50 student members. She suggested that the board consider the work among the younger people as a project for the future and spoke of the possibilities of serving them through the new high school. At this time the programs by hostesses were discontinued, and all talent paid by the board.

Mrs. A. C. Weber spoke of the excellent service rendered by Mrs. S. R. Adair on the house committee, of the fiasco of Ricardo Martin's appearance, of Mrs. Quinn's interest in Americanization work being responsible for the starting of night school classes, of the work done for the beautifying of the library grounds, and of the reorganization of the choral club.

Mrs. D. E. Whitney said that their work was to carry on the well defined program already started, but that the club at that time began to get all of the talent for concerts from Harry Culbertson of Chicago. The club raised $90 for the juvenile department of the library, and during this time the present choral club under the leadership of Effie Drexler was definitely organized.

Mrs. W. H. Gemmell, first president of the club, ended the program with a brief account of the organization of the charter members, and then made a plea that the club make its activities extend further than just to the program meetings, and suggested that on club days as many as wished should meet at the Ransford hotel for luncheon. This suggestion was put to the club and received an enthusiastic response. Any member who wishes to reserve a luncheon plate should telephone the Ransford by 11 o'clock of the day of meeting, and out of town members as soon as they come to town.

The sentiment expressed by all the presidents was one of appreciation of the united and enthusiastic efforts of the various committees, and of their own pleasure in the work.

Mrs. Quinn closed the meeting with reference to the fine results of the request for jellies and jams for the De-wood sanitarium as evidenced by the loaded tables, expressed regret that the annual tea could not be held, and dismissed the club until the December meeting.

20 LETTERMEN OF B. H. S. ARE FETED

1929 Football Squad Eat Turkey at Garveys Restaurant Thursday Evening

James Garvey entertained the 20 lettermen of the 1929 football team of the Brainerd high school, and four guests, at a 6 o'clock dinner on Thursday evening at the Garvey restaurant.

The table decorations were carried out in blue and white, the football team colors. Down the center of the long banquet table, forming the center piece, was a miniature football field of green, marked off with narrow white satin ribbons. In the center was a small football, and on each end of the field, tall blue candles, tied with ribbons, represented the goals. Under the bowls were small crystal baskets filled with flowers and ferns.

Speeches were given by Coach W. C. Kasch, and also by some of the members of the team.

The following were present: Coach W. C. Kasch, Assistant Coach Melby, Captain Arthur Hautala, Carrol Guin, Weston Scholbe, Arthur Lemire, Bernard Foster, Joe Heald, James Garvey, Malcolm Lammon, Gerald Halvorson, Nathan Shuety, Alfred Abrahamson, John Hoffbauer, Jr., Harold Moe, Gerald Cass, Vernon Marshall, Ralph Lukens, Joe Gabiou, Kenneth Clausen, Elmer Foster and Clarence Edstrom. Flying Fists, Flashing Guns Punctuate Exciting Story of Smugglers and Sweethearts

Fox Films presents about a happy alliance when it gives George O'Brien the chief role in a story by Ben Ames Williams, for it is hard to think of any other actor who exemplifies better the kind of brave, venturesome hero that Mr. Williams sometimes choose to portray for the delight of readers of The Saturday Evening Post.

"Masked Emotions," based on the writer's serial "A Son of Anak," which will be shown at the Lyceum Tuesday and Wednesday, has Mr. O'Brien in the part of a college graduate who finds his athletic prowess of use to him in a way of which he never had dreamed when he is thrust into a set of circumstances on the Maine coast while on a pleasure cruise with a chum.

Fisticuffs, pistol duels, fights with shining knives, battles in the dizzy heights of a ship's rigging and hurtling dives into the sea occur during the action of this picture, which has to do with a smuggling conspiracy directed by a wily and merciless Oriental.

Down at the Game

THE Gophers and Badgers were made of stern stuff to play that game Saturday in the biting wind and on a frozen field and the spectators also come in for a share of the glory. The stadium was a wave of color as the blanketed and heavily robed customers weaved about in their seats trying to keep warm, or aiming to retain what heat was generated by the thrills of a hot game.

Football games these days are getting to be like world series baseball, you can't tell what the end will herald until the last man is out.

The glass enclosed press box carried its full quota of newspapermen and telegraphers while a fringe of veterans, including John McGovern, occupied two rows of seats out in the open near the box. Inside, the electric heaters generated so much heat and steam that the glass clouded up like windshields and the heat had to be turned off. In the meantime everybody on the front line scraped away accumulations of frost so that not a play was missed.

Up in the press box one may see the start of a play, its execution and its finish. One is "in" on everything. If there is any smearing to be done, one sees the whole smear.

Saturday was a work day on the campus and it was alive with students. Some of the artistically ones had used liberal doses of paint to tell the world to "get Wisconsin," even to slay the Badgers.

The game was full of thrills. The heavy wind blowing played many funny pranks. Pharmer punted one time and the wind carried the ball back, Minnesota losing five yards and Pharmer downing his own punt to stop any further ground loss.

While the high on the hill, or higher critics of the press box bemoaned occasional fumbles and especially Riebeth's bad break at the very start of the game which paved the way to a Badger touchdown, others considered the fact that playing barehanded in subzero weather is no sinecure and that frozen hands strained to the limit of endurance are sometimes unable to hold a pass or punt.

At the minutes lagged along to the finish, some deep praying was done by Minnesotans in the stands. A one-point lead isn't much, and that was all that stood in the way of Wisconsin which heaved passes and lunged around the field in the last minute desperation to score. It is believed to have been the longest one-minute interval ever lived through on the stadium and after nerves were almost splitting somebody had made a mistake in time outs and the hands of the clock were shoved back again. After an interminable period stretched out like a Dempsey-Tunney count the referee fired and it was as welcome as a rain splash last August.

Nagurski stood the brunt of the attack and made the two touchdowns. When yards had to be gained, when there were no ifs or buts or alibis about the matter, the Bronko went through. He was on the Brainerd train last night bidding goodbye to his little brother and a young sister. Marks of the fray were visible on his face. His nose and forehead carried cuts.

Riebeth, in one of his long runs, when he wormed his way through Wisconsin and was slapped down by three Badgers who nailed him near the sidelines, is reported to have lost his whole row of front teeth.

Everybody had a good time except the last minute ticket sellers who expected to reap rich gain.

The Minnesota band was wonderful in its playing and fancy drill movements and turned out a letter "W" with a ring around it.

A Chance for Improvements

If some of those western roads tell President Hoover there is no chance for an improvement program this next year to benefit business, let them take a ride on some of their roads.

Progress has been made in equipment. Running time has been speeded up. Unnecessary trains have been cut out. Competition with the busses has caused some of this.

There is room, however, for improvement in road beds and in track laying. The eastern roads use stone ballast and weld their rails. The stone ballast gives solidity and does away with track weaving. The welding cuts out the click and contributes to smoother riding.

No railroad can be deemed perfect when its rolling stock shuttles around like a flivver on a rough road.

Eastern engineers aided by good roadbeds and equipment bring their passenger trains to an easy stop. Some of the western boys hark back to the freight train days and jar a passenger in his seat when a stop is made.

Con O'Brien 75 Years Young

CON O'BRIEN's birthday, when he was 75 years young, this year became more than a pleasant family event, in fact it grew statewide and almost nationwide in the attention that was paid Brainerd's famous citizen.

Telegrams of congratulation poured in all day, flowers and cards and letters, and even the radio, WCCO, took up the spirit of the occasion and congratulated Mr. O'Brien.

It is a great thing, it means much to have the friendship and hearty good wishes of many people. Mr. O'Brien has been successful in many fields, but nowhere does he feel more real pleasure and satisfaction than in noting the many genuine bonds of friendship that he has made and whose expression on his birthday gave evidence of the affection held for him.

The Brainerd Dispatch adds its good wishes to the many that were showered on him.

Use of Power Growing

THE use of electric power and light is growing in Brainerd. The many new stores, the new Public theater, will use more current. In the end it may mean a redistribution of service in order to supply the many and growing needs of Brainerd.

MINNESOTA trunk highways are generally starting the winter in good condition. There has been a general improvement in the gravel routes.

THE Morrison County Teachers institute will be held at Little Falls on December 12 and 13.

Poultry Pointers for Use in Breeding Pens

The inclusion of birds in the flock that have other than straight breastbones is a matter for the individual to decide. It is inadvisable to use males with this defect, no matter what may be decided regarding females.

A crooked breast is a deformity, however.

The trap-nester, possibly, is more likely to use breeding birds with this deformity than a breeder not knowing actual record of the birds.

Where birds have been trap-nested it will be an easy matter to leave out those birds which do not lay normal-shaped or standard-sized eggs.

It is not expected that each bird will lay exhibition-quality eggs, but eggs that are pronouncedly abnormal will certainly not give optimum hatching results.

COFFEE CROP AIDED BY RED CROSS IN ISLANDS

Disaster relief given following the West Indies hurricane which struck Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Florida, as well as other islands in the Caribbean Sea, presented one of the largest tasks yet undertaken by the American Red Cross. In Florida, where 1,810 lives were lost, the Red Cross aided 41,236 persons. In Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, where the loss of life was not so great, but where the devastation was almost complete, the Red Cross aided 731,712 persons.

Destruction of the coffee plants was the gravest loss, and the Red Cross aided in rehabilitating this industry by employing 67,000 natives to clear the coffee-land, so that replanting would go forward immediately, thus providing work and wages for thousands.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Guessing Games

They were a lot of fun when we were youngsters, those guessing games. Guess who this is! Guess the number of beans in the pot! Guess how long the pendulum will swing! Sometimes we came pretty close to the right answer. Sometimes we were a long way off. Whichever we were, we all had a good time, and the worst guesser got as much of the evening's refreshments as the best.

How far away those guessing games seem now! And how they have lost their appeal. Perhaps it's because we learned, as we grew older, that to know is better than to guess. Guess which is the best package on the grocer's shelf! Guess which bolt of cloth is pure wool! Guess which talking machine will give us most satisfaction! No, guessing for those things wasn't so much fun. We wanted to be certain. And that was one of the reasons we turned to advertising.

Advertising takes the guesswork out of buying. It lets us know what is best and what is cheapest and what will last longest. It does away with unsatisfactory uncertainties. The advertisements in this newspaper tell a concise, interesting and accurate story about articles you need. Reading them is the surest and quickest path to wise buying. It eliminates guessing.

By reading the advertisements regularly, and buying advertised goods, you take the guessing out of spending your money.

BRONKO NAGURSKI CLOSSES SEASON IN BLAZE OF GLORY

ALBIE BOOTH'S REMARKABLE CAREER SUFFERS ANTI-CLIMAX WITH HARVARD

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—The acid test for many potential all-American football stars has come and gone; for others it will come this week.

Albie Booth's remarkable career suffered an anti-climax last Saturday when the little Yale star went into the final game against Harvard after watching the Princeton game from the bench because of a crippled leg. Booth threw a forward pass to Hoot Ellis for Yale's only touchdown but had one of his kicks blocked which paved the way against Harvard's touchdown. In comparison to his great offensive play against Brown, Army and Cornell, Booth was pretty well stopped by Harvard.

Two Harvard stars, Barry Wood, quarterback, and Ben Tichnor, center, played hero roles in the crimson triumph. Wood kicked a field goal and Tichnor, although crippled in the second period, played superbly in the defense, ranging behind the line and making many great tackles.

In the midst Bronko Nagurski, Minnesota fullback and tackle, closed his gridiron career in a blaze of glory by leading his team to a 13 to 12 victory over Wisconsin. He scored both touchdowns.

Tim Moynihan, Notre Dame center and one of the leading candidates for a place on the all-American team, suffered a broken leg in the Northwestern game.

Two other Notre Dame stars, Frank Carideo, quarterback, and Joe Savoldi, fullback, added stellar deeds to their names. Carideo ran 85 yards for a touchdown, while Savoldi ripped the Northwestern line to shreds with his sharp thrusts.

In the far west Benny Lom, California's great fullback, was stopped by Stanford for the first time this season in a big game. Although Lom threw a pass for California's only touchdown, two of his kicks were blocked and one of them converted into a Stanford touchdown.

Moffat and Fentrup, Stanford backs, played prominent roles in Stanford's 21 to 6 triumph. Capt. Mueh Miller, end, also stood out in the victory.

Cy Leland, Texas Christian's speedy halfback, continued his deceptive running in the southwest, making runs of 62 and 92 yards against Baylor.

Three of Purdue's outstanding players closed their gridiron careers Saturday against Indiana. They were Pest Welch and Glen Harneson, backs, and Red Sleight, tackle. Welch and Harneson led the attack which swamped Indiana, 32 to 0, and gave Purdue its first undefeated record and Big Ten title.

Tony Fiano, Fordham center, who has been mentioned prominently as one of the east's best players, starred in his team's 14 to 0 triumph over Bucknell.

Chris Cagle, Army star and all-American back last season, sat on the bench for the first half while Ohio Wesleyan held the Cadets scoreless but went into the game in the third period and made a 66-yard dash for a touchdown.

Pittsburgh's four all-American candidates—Uansa and Peakinson, backs, Montgomery, guard, and Donchess, end—will get their final test of the season against Penn State Thursday unless the Panthers participate in a post-season game.

Gene McEver, Tennessee's hard-running halfback, and Hug and Brandt, Tennessee's great pair of ends, will see action for the last time this season against Kentucky Thanksgiving Day and against South Carolina at Knoxville December 7.

Bill Banker, Tulane halfback, and Morris Bodenger, Tulane guard, have their final tests Thursday against Louisiana State.

Eugene ("Bubbles") Hargrave, manager of the St. Paul American association baseball club, will join the Yankees next season as a catcher. Bubbles was once with the Cubs and later played with the Cincinnati Reds.

RISSMAN TROPHY TO BE PRESENTED TO COACH PHELAN

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—The Rissman trophy, awarded each year to the team which wins the Big Ten conference football championship on the basis of the Dickinson rating system, will be presented to Coach Jimmy Phelan of Purdue at a banquet in Lafayette Tuesday night, it has been announced.

Prof. Frank G. Dickinson, University of Illinois faculty member who originated the system, will make the presentation.

SKI JUMP SITE GETS APPROVAL

FOR LONG JUMPS

The hill at Horseshoe lake about four and a half miles from Brainerd on the Lum park road has been approved by skiing experts of Brainerd and state as an ideal natural site.

Jacob Preston, Brainerd, assistant county highway engineer and prominent ski jumper, leads the group of ski enthusiasts in this city in organizing a ski club and constructing a jump at Horseshoe lake. A meeting for that purpose will be called in the near future.

Preston predicts that the jump will be constructed so that jumps between 100 and 150 feet can be made. Assistance in constructing the jump will be solicited.

C. A. Lund of Minneapolis, president of the Northland Ski Manufacturing Co., has promised his assistance as well as Lars Haugen, Minneapolis, holder of several northwest ski titles. Haugen is expected in the city in the near future to assist in plans.

Cobb Praises Catchers

Cochrane and Ray Schalk

Speaking of catchers, Cobb still has the floor. "I have seen them come and go, some good, some bad and some just fair. The best of the lot? Cochrane. He can catch for my money any day. But there were some others. Ray Schalk, as youthful almost in appearance as when he broke in. There was a great catcher."

"I remember a story Kid Gleason told me about 'Cracker' when he first joined the White Sox. Ed Walsh was then at the height of his fame as a pitcher. Schalk was a rookie. Ed had a great spitter and a lot of other stuff then and he wasn't so keen to pitch to the green kid, and said perhaps he had better give the signals. Gleason wasn't in favor of this for he was afraid it would shake the youngster's confidence if he couldn't catch his ball game all the way through. So 'Kid' told Walsh that to show him how good the young catcher was there would be no signals. 'Just go out there and throw anything you want; the kid'll catch 'em,' Gleason told the great pitcher. And he did."

EACH TEAM HAS ITS FLOCK OF SUPPORTERS

HARDEST INTERSECTIONAL SCHEDULES

BOILERMAKERS USED SPEED AND VARIED ATTACK TO WIN

By BERT DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 25.—(U.P.)—Two undefeated teams, Purdue and Notre Dame, monopolized midwestern football discussions today and there was difference of opinion as to which is the better.

Each team had its supporters—Purdue because it has played one of the hardest intersectional schedules it ever has had and has yet to taste of defeat.

There still are expressions of surprise over Purdue's feat. Regarded only as a "dark horse" (and a mighty dark one at that) at the start of the season, the Boilmakers have played in such convincing manner that there was no doubt that the better team won in every game they played.

Led by a backfield which is one of the best in America the Purdue outfit used speed and a varied attack to win. They were well coached, having an abundance of plays, and they had a quarterback who knew when to use the plays.

It wasn't an easy task to direct a team which weighed only 172 pounds to the man and Wilce deserves a lot of credit for the way he handled his running backs, Harneson, Welch and Yunevich.

Purdue won from Michigan, Chicago, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, and three non-conference teams.

Notre Dame has one game yet to play—with Army next Saturday. If it wins it undoubtedly will have a great claim on a national title. No other team has played the intersectional schedule it has. If the Irish remain undefeated they will have beaten Navy, Wisconsin, Drake, Southern California, Carnegie Tech, Indiana, George Tech, Northwestern and Army.

Notre Dame would be favorite to win from Purdue. Coach Knute Rockne has at least eight backfield men, all good and one about as good as the other and he has plenty of reserve linemen. On the other hand Coach Phelan's reserve power does not compare with this and the belief exists that Notre Dame could down and beat the Boilmakers.

It is unlikely that they will get together. There is no doubt that a game between the two would pack Soldiers Field, but the western conference frowns on post-season games.

Purdue came through its last game Saturday with a 32-0 victory over Indiana. Notre Dame scored a costly victory over Northwestern, 26-6, losing the services of Tim Moynihan when the center was carried out of the game with a broken leg.

In the other games of Saturday, Illinois won from Ohio State, 27-0; Minnesota defeated Wisconsin 13-12; Iowa and Michigan played a tie, 0-0; and Chicago won from the University of Washington, 26-6.

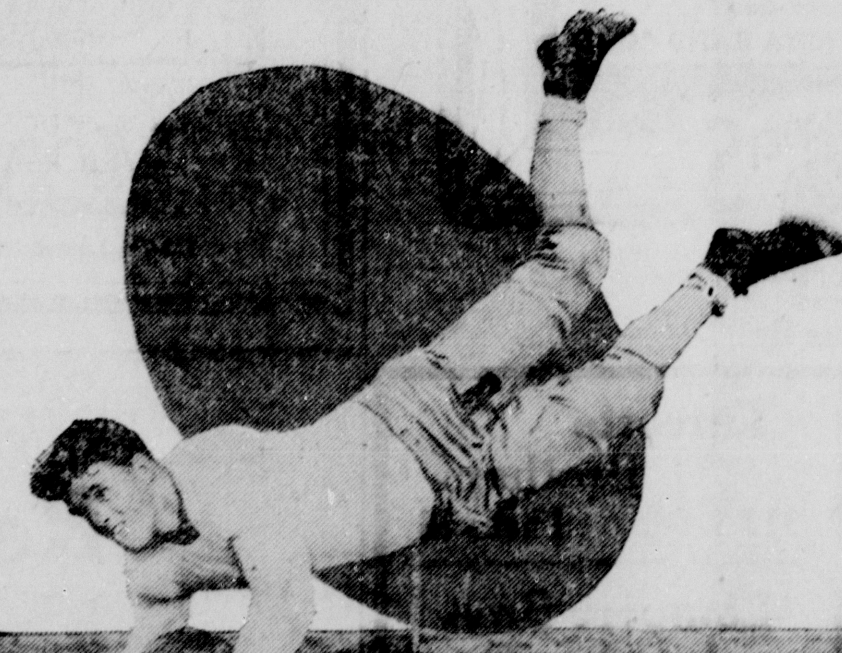

Illinois' large score was a surprise as was the Chicago victory over Washington. The Huskies were favored before the game, but Chicago turned loose an open attack which smothered its heavier opponents.

Detroit, until Saturday one of three undefeated teams in the midwest, took a 14-7 beating from Oregon Aggies. Incidentally it was the first defeat Detroit had received in 23 starts, although it had been tied once.

Athletic Coach's Right Place Is in Grandstand

The athletic coach's place is in the grandstand, in the opinion of Prof. S. C. Staley, physical education instructor at the University of Illinois, who deprecates the "present over-organized condition of intercollegiate athletics."

Gradual shifting of managerial duties from paid coach to students, a reversal of the evolution that has taken place from 1883 to the present time, is forecast by the Illinois professor.

Staley traces the development of intercollegiate athletics from the Harvard-Yale rowing match in 1852, which he said was the first contest of this nature, to the organization of the football coaching staff of twenty-nine men at Harvard, in his defense of student managership.

In 1883, Staley states, the alumni of Yale university took a new step when they hired an alumnus, Walter Camp, to coach and manage their team. A. A. Stagg, who was appointed director of athletics at the University of Chicago in 1893, was the first man to take over these duties, Staley said.

Staley substantiates his prediction of the breaking down of the system by citing the ruling made in New York two years ago by which the coach was removed from the bench and sent to the grandstand. Similar rulings have been made in Detroit and the state of Connecticut.

He does not advocate complete abolition of alumni and faculty control, but does not believe it should be so monopolistic that it completely pushes out the students.

Gridiron Air Raiders

By HARDIN BURNLEY

FRIEDMAN and Oosterbaan, superstar and still one with the Oberlander and Tully, "Brick" Muller and Stevens—those and other great forward passing combinations always come to mind whenever fans buzz about football's "air raiders." Of all the game's details, passing attacks and defenses are the most difficult to perfect and in no other does luck seem to play so important a part. As a passing offense improves, the luck factor diminishes but it always remains potent even when genuine experts do the tossing and the receiving.

Over a span of several seasons, Benny Friedman, former Michigan

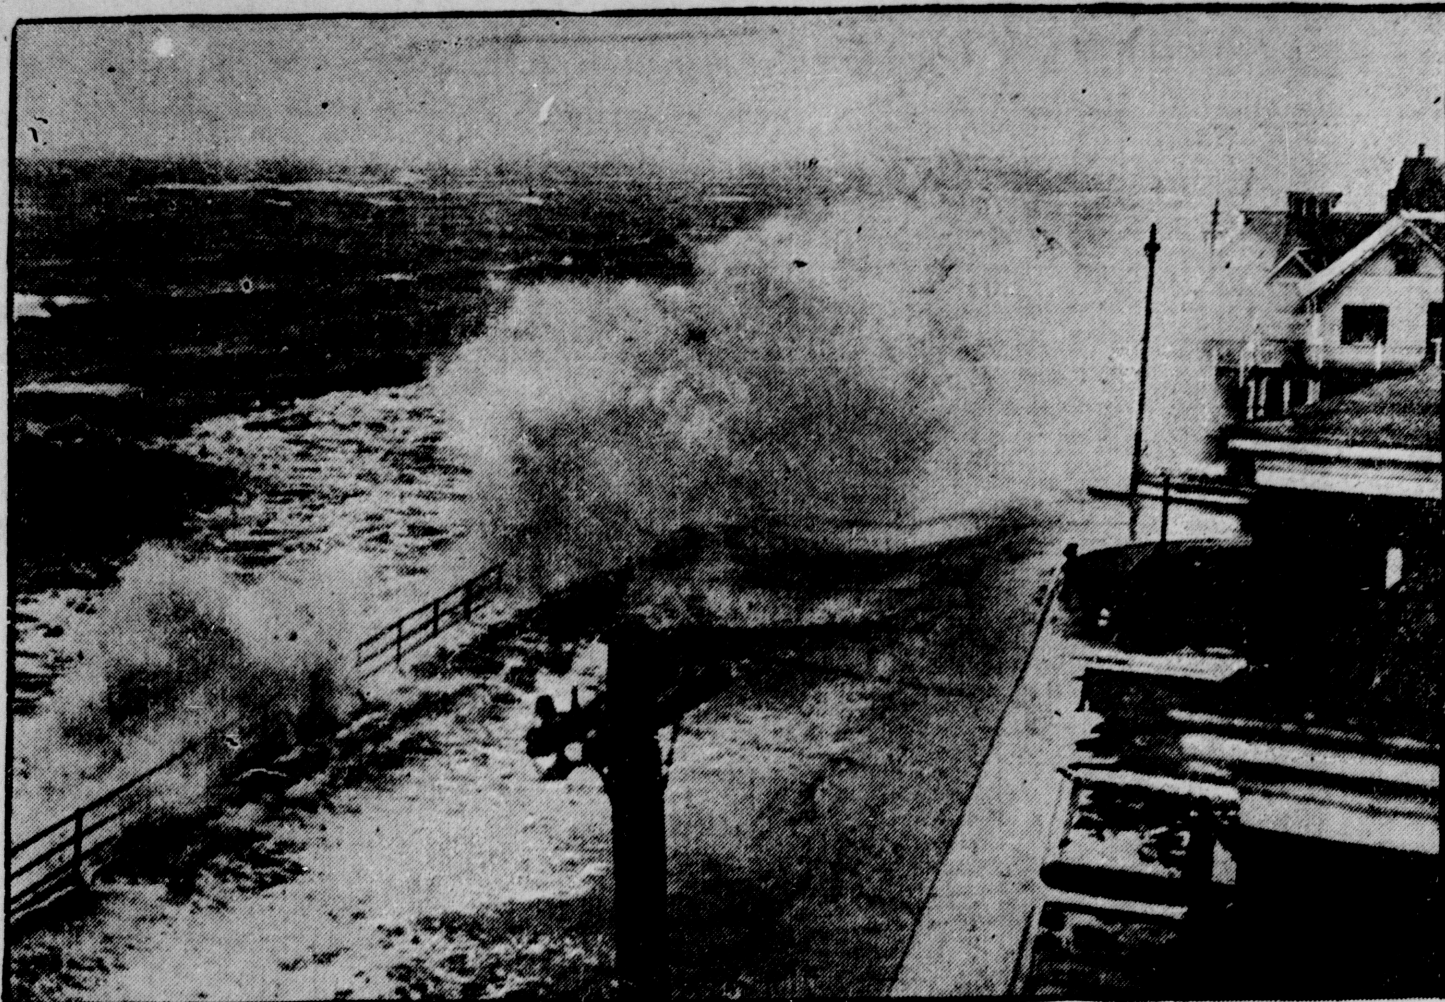

Alto, Stanford is favored to win. The Golden Bears' chief hope would seem to live in their Lom-Eisan or some other strategic passing game.

Earl Dunlap of Georgia Tech, "Link" Fogarty of Brown, Barry Wood of Harvard, and Chris Cagle of West Point have made many spotlight-winning passes this season, as has Frank Carideo of Notre Dame. They are rated high among the grid's sharpshooters.

Way down South many say that "Goat" McMillan of Clemson comes close to being the perfect passer. He can rifle his pegs up to twenty yards and from that point on can arch them accurately all the way to 70 yards!

MR. O'BRIEN RESUMES PROMISING 76th YEAR

Congratulations Pour in to Prominent Business Man and Builder on Birthday

36 IN FAMILY HONOR HIM

Health of Energetic Man Continues in Best; Not an Ache or Pain, He Says

Con O'Brien today entered his 76th year, resolving to make the following years as active as those of the past.

Mr. O'Brien celebrated his 75th birthday anniversary yesterday with members of his family, while showers of congratulations poured in from all parts of the United States.

Energetic in body as well as in mind, Mr. O'Brien's health is remarkable. He stated to the Dispatch this morning that he "did not feel any older, and did not have a pain or an ache more than a baby."

Mr. O'Brien's expansive building program during the last year, which amounted to more than $150,000 on Laurel street, is an indication of what this man has accomplished for the city. He is an outstanding builder of Brainerd and one of the foremost business men in the city of all time who has accomplished much for the welfare of the city from the pioneer days, and has assisted many citizens and business men in attaining a start in Brainerd, contributing to its growth and prosperity.

On Saturday evening a surprise was given by the employees of the O'Brien Mercantile Company, and O'Brien Wholesale and Gateway Electric Company together with all the members of the O'Brien family in honor of Mr. O'Brien's 75th birthday anniversary.

The party was held in the newly carpeted and enlarged ready to wear department of the O'Brien Mercantile Company, which had been beautifully decorated in gold and green for the evening. Floor lamps and flowers carrying out the same colors completed the decorations. The party numbered 53 in all.

It was all a complete surprise to Mr. O'Brien. He was called out of the store, and when he returned, everything was in readiness. He walked to the back part of the building, and the company, numbering 53, formed a line and each congratulated him personally. The evening was then spent in various entertainments—games, bridge and dancing. A radio had been installed to furnish the music. At 10:45 o'clock congratulations over WCCO were broadcast for Mr. O'Brien in which they congratulated him on his birthday and hoped he would have many more. A number was then dedicated to him "Why Was I Born" which was played by Dick Long's trio.

Refreshments were served at a late hour. A birthday cake, decorated in gold and green, with 75 gold candles, formed a beautiful centerpiece for the table. Tall lighted yellow candles were placed at each end.

A huge bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums, with a card "Congratulations on your 75th birthday from the employees" was then presented to him. Mr. O'Brien then thanked them all for the honor they had given him which he appreciated very highly. Three birthday cheers were then given which brought the delightful evening to a close.

On Sunday, the entire family, numbering 36, which includes ten grand children, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Con O'Brien, 409 South Broadway. Dinner was served at 2 o'clock, at which covers were laid for 30. Decorations were carried out in green, yellow and red, with a beautiful bouquet of red roses forming the centerpiece. Mr. O'Brien was literally showered with flowers by his many friends.

Among those from out of town who gathered at the home yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Siehl of Minneapolis, Ed Tom O'Brien who is attending the University of Minnesota, Sister Kathleen from Duluth, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Klinger of Madison, Wis.

Mr. O'Brien received a number of telegrams, including one from his daughter Alice O'Brien who is at Madison, Wis.; one from Larry Hodgson, mayor of St. Paul as follows: "With hearty good will I join your numerous friends in congratulating you on your 75th birthday and in wishing you every happiness and good luck. May the years be kind to you and fill your heart with contentment and satisfaction. You have earned the affection of your fellows and I rejoice that they make it manifest to you in such full measure and may God bless you abundantly." He also received one from Halifax, Virginia which was signed "Isabel and Jess." Mrs. Isabel Simpson and Mrs. Jess Savage, as follows: "Birthday greetings with a heart full of love and best wishes for many happy returns of the day. Wish we could both be with you all to help celebrate and sing a song for you. Remember us to all your dear ones assembled today." Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. Savage were formerly Isabel and Jess Eickner of the city.

Rev. Lowrie of Windom, Minn., formerly of this city, composed a poem of congratulation to Mr. O'Brien.

It is significant to note that just 25 years ago this month, Mr. O'Brien was elected mayor of the city of Brainerd. He also served several terms afterward.

SELL THEIR FIRST BOTTLE, ARRESTED

Partnership in Liquor Racket Revealed by Amateurs in Municipal Court

GET LIGHT SENTENCES

Wife of One Tells Judge That Her Family Needed Fuel and Food

Two young Brainerd men who found it difficult to make livings for their wives and families, each having three children, pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning to the charge of sale of intoxicating liquor, revealing a partnership plan in the liquor racket which went haywire when they were arrested after making their first sale.

Douglas Clark and L. W. Howe, the two involved, were fined $25 and costs each. They revealed that they had purchased a gallon of liquor at Pillager and had made their first sale when arrested by Officers Erick Graff and H. B. Sande.

Mrs. Clark appeared in municipal court this morning and on questioning by Judge J. H. Warner stated that her husband had been out of work for some time and that their home in northeast Brainerd was in dire need of fuel and food. She said that she was unable to get any credit while her husband was out of work.

Howe told the court that he lived in West Brainerd, that he at present was out of work but planned to start in chicken raising soon.

Both men stated that it was their first time in court on any charge.

"I am making the sentences light because I realize your plight but I hope that you will take a lesson from this. Handling liquor or drinking it does not get you anywhere," said Judge Warner.

Cuyler Adams Sells Island Opposite Green Lantern to Minneapolis Man

DONATED TO SCOUTS

Minneapolis Area Council to Use Property for Summer Activities

Crow Wing county stands today as the summer camp playground of state Y. M. C. A. and Boy Scout organizations.

Recently a large tract of lake shore property was purchased by the Y. M. C. A. near Deerwood.

Today the announcement was made that the 54 acre island in Bay Lake which has for many years been the property of Cuyler Adams, Deerwood, has been sold to Frank S. Gold of Minneapolis, who has presented the island to the Minneapolis Boy Scout Area Council. The island has a beautiful stand of pine and will be known as "The Isle of Pines."

The island will be used as a base for canoe trips and a training center for sea scouting as well as for new phases of scout training.

The Minneapolis Area Boy Scout Council provides leadership on scouting programs for 11 counties of central Minnesota.

The island which is directly across from the Green Lantern, Bay Lake dance pavilion, was originally home-steaded by Joseph Rutger, one of the pioneers of Crow Wing county. Later Mr. Rutger purchased the present location of his resort on the mainland from the head of the colony which had been established there. He later sold the island to Martin Seavey for the latter's work in building Mr. Rutger's original buildings which were used in the establishment of the first summer resort of this district. Mr. Adams came into possession of the island by a purchase from Mr. Seavey.

FOLLERIN' THE BAND

WHO hasn't "foller'd" the band up Main street, or up Broadway or Michigan boulevard? Heart pumping joyously, feet beating the ground in time! Grandly intoxicating moment of childhood!

And—later in life—who hasn't felt a thrill as the conductor lifted his baton for the overture to begin? A moment pregnant with the glamour of the theatre! Music casts its spell throughout all the Ages of Man.

Is it wise then, in this enlightened and prosperous day, to countenance substitution of a shadow of music for the real thing in the theatre? Imagine the Irish following a Music Box on St. Patrick's Day! Or life and drum music by a Machine on Memorial Day! Incongruous? Of course, but not more so than a mechanical overture in the theatre.

Talking pictures—a new dramatic form; the radio—which transmits music directly and DOES reflect the artist's mood of the moment; the phonograph in the home—where living music usually is not available—are not at issue here. We are discussing only the SUBSTITUTION OF MECHANICAL MUSIC FOR REAL MUSIC IN THE THEATRE, in consequence of which Real Music is being eliminated in theatres.

TURCOTTE BROTHERS

"The Masked Hostess"

by BLAIR STEVENSON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Upon the death of her father, "Happy" Jack Van Slaick, once wealthy sportsman and social leader, Nathalie Van Slaick, young and beautiful, finds herself left a few dollars and an old, abandoned Long Island estate called "The Firs." After being coldly repulsed by her rich aunt, Mrs. Pemberton Swayne, Nathalie in desperation cashes a check for $500 for which there are no funds. Without her knowledge, John Sloan, young lawyer, assigned to her affairs, makes the check good. Fearing that a detective is trailing her, Nathalie leaves a train at Brookville, Long Island. From the president of the local bank, a merciless Shylock, who holds the mortgage on "The Firs," which he desires because the new state road will enhance its value, Nathalie accepts a strange proposition. It is to act as hostess at "The Firs," which is to be rented to a wealthy South American who wishes to entertain his friends. On the condition that her identity remains hidden by wearing a silken mask, Nathalie meets the handsome foreigner who turns out to be Capt. Ramon Stefano, supposedly of great wealth and much sought after by the young smart set. He does not know that he has previously met her. Nathalie, with a black transformation and Spanish costume and the mask, is unrecognizable. Sloan, in love with Nathalie, warns her of the danger she will be in due to the romantic natures of herself and Stefano. Neither of them realize that Stefano is without funds and is being supported in this venture by a mysterious ex-policeman engaged in shady deals. This man, Ferris, had previously trailed Nathalie seeking her estate. He finances Stefano in his strange venture, hoping to draw a visit from Nathalie. The opening of "The Firs," completely remodeled and furnished with a staff of servants, is an outstanding social success. The wealthy Long Island crowd are intrigued by the Masked Hostess. Most of them are of her own set, but Nathalie's disguise is not penetrated. Stefano keeps his word not to seek out Nathalie's identity. She sleeps in the house behind a solid steel door.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER XVII.

SHE bathed and dressed without the assistance of her maid, for she had determined that she would not permit any of the servants in the house to see her without her mask. Not that she did not trust her maid or the others. But she was used to servants and was well aware of their propensity for gossip, particularly about those they served or by whom they were employed. She unlocked the steel door which guarded her suite and rang for her maid when she was ready to go downstairs. The maid appeared, smiling and with her arms full of flowers. She had a message, too, for Nathalie.

"Captain Stefano's compliments, Madame, and could you grant him a few moments in the dining-room? Dinner is ready to be served and he is awaiting Madame there. He says, however, that if the time is not well chosen by him—"

"I will come down at once," Nathalie answered her and the maid smiled again and was gone.

Perhaps it was the opulence and grand scale of him as a host which had left Nathalie so eager to see him again. He had been flawless before his guests, and flawless to her, the night before. Or perhaps it was because, John Sloan had warned her, she and Stefano were both "romantics" and chief actors in a romantic adventure that it was with delight that she hastened down to join him.

He was in riding clothes. A groom was walking his horse outside the house. He looked fresh and handsome and smart and friendly as he snapped to his feet. He explained at once that he was dining elsewhere after going to Meadowbrook to dress and that he had come in only to lose a small burden off his mind. "I know," he said in his cheerful, crisp fashion, "I was riding by here earlier in the afternoon and it struck me what a dashed grim and lonely sort of place it really is after all. Except that we're rather by way of turning night into day so that it'll be daylight mostly when you're above the main floor, I wouldn't have it on my conscience to have you sleep here."

"And so that you'll always have the upper hand, or feel that you will in any event—though goodness knows I can think of no reason why you'll ever require it or I'd not consent to your stopping here—I've brought you over a bit of artillery. Are you used to firearms at all?"

"Why, yes," said Nathalie. "My father was a great shot and he and

He whirled on his heels and shot in the direction from which he had come.

I did a lot of target practice. I'm really rather good."

"Capital," cried Stefano. "So there are two of us, then." He spoke to the butler in Italian and the man hurried to the kitchen. "I've told him," explained Stefano, "to go let the rest of the household know that we're not blazing at each other seriously. Now watch—as a crack shot you'll enjoy this."

He picked up one of the candles on the table and carried it to the far end of the long parlor which opened off the dining-room. When he returned to Nathalie he had a blue steel revolver in his hand. His face radiated delight. "Ready?" he asked, still facing her. She nodded.

He whirled on his heel and shot in the direction from which he had come. The candle was snuffed out clean as his bullet hit its wick. "No harm done," he assured her calmly. "You see I placed the candle this side of an open window and with a tree bole outside in line with the candle to take the bullet. All right? Here you take the pistol and have it about you upstairs. I'll feel lighter."

He rose at once to go. Nathalie had watched him fascinated. Bred and nurtured in the traditions of sport, he was the stamp of man she had always been taught to admire. Men like him, who hunted, rode, shot and excelled outdoors, had always been her father's cronies and boon friends. She had little knowledge of men who toiled for success in business or in the professions. Worldly success and worldly possessions meant less than nothing to her, for she had been accustomed all her life to those who took possessions as a matter of course and never thought of success—except in sport—at all.

He, on his side, admired all women and women like Nathalie most. She spelled "blood inheritance," to him like blood horses did. His fortunes, like hers, had dwindled, although she had no guess of this. And they had dwindled because he had inherited them and had not known how to guard them. He was no common adventurer but merely an open-handed gentleman out of luck. He had come up from Argentina, spending his patrimony as freely as he had always spent it. It had run out, he had taken Ferris's offer to establish him in The Firs in exactly the same spirit in which he would have taken a bet at a race course.

He arose to go. And suddenly he and Nathalie were standing staring at each other, each of them fighting furiously against what they had felt. He because he considered it wasn't "cricket" she had accepted his protection and he was the one to earn a wage and clear herself of dishonor before the law hunted her down. He caught himself up first.

TAKE IT FROM DAD

By Frank H. Cheley

The Boys of Today and of Yesterday.

Dad Smithough laid down his evening paper and turned sharply to Bob who was busy with his lessons in his accustomed corner.

"Bob, what ails you boys at school? Seems to me the papers are just full of one fool escapade after another. Here the council is advocating more policemen and a nine o'clock curfew to keep you young rowdies going straight. A half dozen expelled last week; three stolen autos the night of the concert and now two more of you have 'tired of the restraints of home' and have started to see the world on five dollars apiece."

Bob looked sheepish in spite of himself. The principal had had several recent special assemblies. The chief of police had talked to the student body and things were badly upset.

"Dad, it's not so good I know. Seems to come in streaks like dog days. Those kids aren't bad. They just get crazy. Thank goodness I missed it all this time but don't know how it happened. Dad, are modern kids worse than old-fashioned kids? I've been wondering. I know from what Mother's told me and Uncle Ed that you were no saint yourself, but things do sort of seem to get a bit raw at times."

Dad Smithough considered while he pursed his lips a bit. "It's just a bit complicated and hard to understand, Bob, just what has happened. Things are different, no doubt about it, and whether for better or worse seems quite debatable. You know mighty well I'm not one of these old fogies always sighing for the 'good old days.' The old days that we hear so much about, good or bad, are gone never to come again because we live in a totally different world. All down the line there has been a sort of stripping off of the superfluities; a return to the almost primitive in every realm. People, even you boys, have been doing a lot of thinking and you seem to be challenging a good many old ideas, customs, conventions and prejudices. Certain it is, too, there is a new freedom, less convention, less prescribed ways, less respect for super-imposed authority and so it isn't strange that youth which for thousands of years was to be seen and not heard has suddenly emerged to be both seen and heard, much to the discomfort and concern of your elders—experimenting with conduct much as you do with chemicals in your chemistry to see just what will happen when this is mixed with that."

"Parents and society, Bob, first startled, dismayed, concerned, are now looking on with not a little fear in their hearts at the outcome but helpless to stay the new day. The newspaper with its never-ending array of out-of-the-ordinary crime and immorality, the stage, the modern magazine, the movie, fashion, have all made utter frankness their program. Boys are being forced to see and hear a lot that was forbidden before and then there is the automobile. Reserve has been cast to the four winds and we modern parents are a good deal like the hen who, when she saw her adopted family of ducks sailing serenely away on the water, screamed and cackled and scolded for them to come back, but they would not for they were certain they could both swim and fly and that by themselves.

"Bob, your Mother and I know full well that you and all like you have escaped permanently from the artificial, superficial props and barriers of 'yesterday.' You are on your own as we never were. The question is: Will you be able to stand your freedom and liberty? Will you, with such help and encouragement as we will be able to give you from the 'shore,' be able to develop new resources of reliance and integrity which will stabilize your characters. 'Youth today and youth of yesterday are fundamentally the same, no better, no worse. It is the TIMES which have changed. Essentially all boys are inherently good, healthy, vigorous, active.

"Avoid being cheap; keep yourself hard with vigorous activity and determine to accomplish the impossible in every realm! 'The youngsters of yesterday did not dare to even think the things that are your common thought because of fear. To have acted as many of you now act would have been a family disgrace and could not have been tolerated. The boy of only two generations ago was personal property belonging body and soul to his father whose one object in life was to conform his son to social custom and standard. Today you are a free individuality, a great privilege and a great responsibility! The future will hold you responsible for your heritage. You live in a new and daring and terrible but epic age. Your world is a neighborhood. In many ways you are wonderful. We believe in you. We expect great things from you. You have the raw material. Do not disappoint us."

"Why Dad, then you think we aren't such a bad lot after all. Why the chief of police said—"

"Bob, be true to the best that is in you and you'll make us older men seem like a lot of pikers. I'm for you boy, and you know it!"
